

ADVANTAGES OF TEAMWORK

by:
Janella May S. Alarcon
Teacher Applicant

Despite common belief, teachers are also a unit within educational environments. They don't work independently, but instead in conformity with Department of Education or Commission on Higher Education standards and norms, comparable to how students must follow school policies. Academic staff also follow a chain of command. Which is why, in order to work in consonance with their educators and school support staff, Principals or Deans of Instructors, who are the highest officers inside the school or program, should have a potent level of expertise.

Among the most vital factors to use in any teamwork environment that is aiming toward a common goal or outcome is effective coordination. Teamwork encourages interaction, which optimizes and improves the speed of tasks. Employee engagement, interpersonal connections, collaborative concept development, combined decision-making, logical and contextual resolution of issues, and teamwork all contribute to worker well-being and positive perspectives.

Developing a well-functioning and fluid workplace environment, however, is not always simple. In a team, there are a variety of personalities, dispositions, viewpoints, and perspectives. At a certain level, these factors will intersect, culminating in miscommunication and conflicts. The responsibility of the administration, is to ensure that such events occur as infrequently as possible. Working in a group with numerous other people has its benefits as well; having coworkers means having numerous people who can share idea is to keep motivation and innovation flowing and expanding. Coming up with new ideas and working together are also great methods to establish a sense of belonging and comfort within the institution, which may help people establish faith and credibility.

Working as a team would also be a critical component in achieving goals more effectively and swiftly. Everyone else in the team contributes in some way to the group. Somebody has outstanding communication skills set, while the other one has a strong visual creative capacity. Everybody has some special ability to fulfill a function, and it is the responsibility of the leader to identify and develop such strengths. To get a favorable outcome, it is vital to give assignments that compliment a person's strengths.

Working as a team would also be a critical component in achieving goals more effectively and swiftly. Everyone else in the group contributes in some way to the group. Somebody has outstanding communication skills set, while the other one has a strong visual creative capacity. Everybody has some special ability to fulfill a function, and it is the responsibility of the leader to identify and develop such strengths. To get a favorable outcome, it is vital to give assignments that compliment a person's strengths.

In a typical pre-pandemic, educators used teamwork exclusively for school activities and special events. Also, with the way things have progressed, developing an organized and well-functioning workforce has become highly significant. Inside the schools, interactions are limited, and teachers have rotating timetables for when they will be on campus; as a result, having a group of people who work together proved to be an effective way to complete duties and activities.

To summarize, working as a team is challenging and can take a lot of effort, but it gives a more positive outcome and result at the end of the day. Working as a group saves time and helps to establish social bonds and framework within a company.

References:

<https://www.atlassian.com/blog/teamwork/the-importance-of-teamwork#:~:text=Research%20shows%20that%20collaborative%20problem,job%20satisfaction%2C%20and%20reduces%20stress.>

<https://www.brighthr.com/articles/culture-and-performance/teamwork/the-importance-of-teamwork-in-the-workplace/>

<https://www.dockethq.com/resources/importance-of-teamwork-in-your-organization/>

<https://www.betterup.com/blog/importance-of-teamwork>