Most of us have fond memories of teachers who influenced our lives from the time we enter the classroom. They made us question the norms, allowed us to dream big, and encouraged us to be and do better in every action or decision we made. Inspiring teachers make a difference in the lives of every student handled.

The common thread among teachers is that they understood that students would rise to the opportunities presented to them because teachers manage to know their student’s strengths and weaknesses. They set expectations for students and encouraged them to be the best that they could be by learning more and trying harder. The other thing that is great about teachers is that they know that not all students learn in the same way, they are unique individuals. They knew they had to teach students different techniques to ensure the success of all students.

Teacher quality is an important factor in determining student success in life. They are role models to the learners. The relationship that is built between a teacher and their students is like a relative, it means a family. The communications and interactions inside the classrooms are built on the ability of a teacher to understand the needs of their students.

A teacher like what we knew is a good influencer, a parent to their students. Sometimes disciplinary action done to the students mold them into good people in the future, so that they knew what is right and what is wrong. Being a teacher is not only teaching the skills in all the subjects inside the classroom but also to inspires them to live their life as a better individual, not only for themselves but also for others.
