Parents have a lifelong influence on children's education. They serve as the first teacher of their child. Learning starts at child's home at their early age as parents taught them. Like teachers, they also play an important role in the child's education throughout their lives.

When COVID-19 pandemic hit the world, it not only created health crisis but also catastrophe in education resulting in the so called New Normal Education. In the new set up of educational process, parents/guardians play more substantial part in learning development of their child compared to what they have performed usually, since schooling is now at home with the absence of teachers.

In today's blended learning set-up, parents have active role, they serve as the learning facilitators to their children. They act as the teacher of their kids at home. They facilitate and guide their children in studying and learning lessons in the modules. Unlike before that they just assist, support, and monitor their child after classes in the school, now for the mean time in new normal, they act as teachers that explain the lesson and help their child to understand the lessons. They must make sure that the child will study and learn even when he/she is at home. They must put themselves in the shoes of the teachers. Like teachers, they need to be more patient in teaching their child. They must manage their temper so that the child could understand the lesson.

It is real that the responsibility of parents in the learning of their children has come to be more critical under the new normal education. They need to embrace these new roles for the benefit of their children. They must be physically, emotionally, socially, and mentally prepared to perform their new role effectively. Although their new role is difficult and quite challenging, they need to accept these changes for their child's education. This serves as a great honor for them to experience the noble profession of teaching.

Parents should always remember that they are not alone in this battle, teachers are still on their side to give guidance and assistance whenever they needed. School as well, extended its hands as it orient parents and help them in performing their new task. T child's education will

Parents must keep in their mind that their involvement in their child's education has a great contribution to their success.

Pandemic stops face-to-face classes for the interim, it brings New Normal Education, but we will never allow it to stop the education among children. Education must always continue in whatever circumstances happen.
