In this new era the employee in any organization is expected to be a performer not just a simple employee. The competitive workplace demands people with good quality and with the active passion to work for the better not just in mediocrity.

The performance of every individual is very essential for the following reasons and justifications.

Performance is not just a fundamental requirement in work. Performance shows the ability of the person on how he does his duties and responsibilities in accordance with the job description.

The performance of a person proves that he is an active member of the organization. Someone who performs in the workplace manifests not only his presence but his willingness and dynamism in doing his roles as an employee or worker.

The true performance in the work setting increases one's productivity. If somebody consistent thus a meaningful output then it shows how productive the person is in the workplace. With this, he is doing an accomplishment.

Any worker who performs very well in an organization is indeed influential. Through his hard work he is able to inspire and affect other people in order to do the same. Truly, working with excellent is admirable.

The performance of every individual whether in school or business contributes to the success of the entire organization therefore all of the employee must contribute even in a simple task to accommodate interstice. The conglomeration and collaboration of efforts are contributory to the triumph in work.

The performance of every person reflects the image of the organization. If people see that every member of a school, company or organization are quality workers then they may infer that this kind of workplace is deserving of praises.

Thus, the performance of every employee or worker counts a lot and is contributory to the efficiency and success in the entire organization.
