

A WORKING MOTHER

by:
Sherlyn N. Bautista
Administrative Staff

Being a mother is a priceless gift from our creator. It full of joy, happiness, love, sacrifices and it can accomplish your role being a mother. In our past tradition, a mother should be stay in the house to do the household chores like cooking, cleaning, washing clothes, raising the children, protecting, and the one who take care the family. A mother is also responsible in budgeting or financial aspect, prepare the needs of the family member and play the important roles in our society.

Today women are more independent, knowledgeable and have an equal right to the men. When women build their own family, most of them are decided to work and continue her personal and professional development that can improve and make changes to the future and lifestyles of a family member. A working mother is not an easy task to perform, and you should know the time management for your family and work. This is full of responsibility before going to her work, the mother wakes up early to prepare the food for the family and helping children fixing their self to attend the classes in the school. After working hours, the mother cleans the house, preparing food for dinner, guiding, and teaching the kids on the school homework and activities like reading and writing. The working mother performs flexible and synchronized activities that will help the family on financial aspect that can support the necessity of the family.

When one of the family members is not feeling well especially the child, the mother is responsible to monitor, giving the right medicine to drink, and securing the health of her child for the whole night. Sometimes a mother did not go to work prioritizing her child's needs on the said day and when they have a school activity or meeting the mother will attend on the said event. A difficult part on the working mother is when she needs to prepare herself to report on work even a sleepiness night just to do the obligation as a worker and thinking that your work is very important things to increase the standard of living and for daily expenses allowance of the family.

As a working mother like me, I always see the positive traits and there is so much happiness seeing that your family member is proud of you, and they support you in your plan to fulfill all the dreams for your family. Sometimes you're on the point that you will give up your work to prioritize your family but thinking that is not enough if your husband will work only to your family to provide all the needs of the family. Despite on this you can do all the things and make it easy even you encountered trials as a mother and as a worker by asking the guidance of our Lord and knowing that he did not give you on this situation if you don't know how to handle it and it will measure you to become strong person.

References:

(Online) Available at<: <https://www.mega.essay.com>

(Online) Available at<: <https://www.bartleby.com>

(Online) Available at<: <https://best10resumewriters.com>