

REACHING THE PEAK

by:

Sondi Alyza S. Llaneta

Teacher III, Salian Elementary School

As an educator you are anticipated to aspire for quality and excellence in your work. Most of the time you are giving the utmost efforts not just for yourself but for the benefit of your learners. But there are times when you also do great things to attain professional development, growth and advancement in this highly competitive era wherein reaching the peak is indeed possible.

A teacher is expected to be at best in work. To reach the peak, one must exert the utmost creative abilities in preparing for class discussions. Teachers are expected to be well-prepared and well-organized to execute quality instruction among the sets of learners in school.

Guiding a child may also indicate the peak of one's job. It is very rewarding if a teacher can guide a learner consistently in the correct path of life. In daily school interactions, effectively leading the child to understand well and acquire the prescribed skills or competencies will be fulfilling.

Being competitive in school or at work also indicates success. But the teacher must be in a healthy competition and not in rivalry. It is good to see teachers who are always active, energetic, and dynamic in the things they do, most especially in the performance of certain tasks in school. Let us be a teacher of excellence through healthy competition.

Attaining advancement nowadays may be realized through trainings and technology. The influx of technologically advanced software and programs related to education is very evident in the present time. Those teachers who commit themselves in trainings and technology emerge as better professionals.

The accomplishment of further education is another indicator of one's peak. One of the topmost priorities or goals of teachers in this generation is to finish a degree in the Graduate School. Further education does not only provide educational advancement but also elevates your status and quality as an educator.

Achieving a certain promotion is another glorious experience for a teacher. This is the fruit of one's labor and no one can deny that everyone aspires for a promotion at work. Having a job promotion is truly satisfying and rewarding to any individual.

Showing great concern for others and contributing to the common goals are indicators that a teacher has reached a certain peak or success. Doing good things for the sake of others and working cooperatively for the common goals are great.

These are the feasible ways on how a teacher may attain the peak of success in everything he or she does and aspires.

References:

How to achieve success in the Teaching Profession.

<https://atheneumglobal.education/blog/how-to-achieve-success-in-the-teaching-profession>

12 Things Successful Teachers Do. <https://www.futureeducators.org/12-things-successful-teachers-do/>