

FACE-TO-FACE: ARE WE READY?

by:
Rowell L. Castro
Teacher Applicant

During pandemic, the online platform has been the best strategies to be used in the educational set up. With the current COVID 19, nothing has been easy. With the current updates from the Department of Education, everything seemed to be going back to normal.

The students now in their uniforms, the parents waiting for their children as well as the teachers in the current room, designing and getting ready for their current tasks, to teach face-to-face with their beloved students.

However there are many reasons and problems as well as challenges on this current face-to-face. Not with the teachers, the parents or any people involved in the educational system, not also with the process, but with the current flow of the emotions amongst the people.

The emotions such as excitement and how to manage the fear of the unknown is one of the main challenges on this face-to-face. Giving also the current situation of what may be the future among the students with their parent as the face to face is now ready to be unleashed in full throttle.

What are the current emotional instability among the students, children and parents as well as teachers?

These are the list of the themes from the responses of the participants:

COVID-19 Fear of Returning

The teachers, specially the parents fear that they may be experiencing again the spreading of viruses since the f2f mode has been the reason behind the previous cause of spread of the virus.

Development of the Hybrid

When the COVID 19 hit, the development of the online and the physical mode of learning has been one of the most awaited mode to be done in the education and this has never been easy with the students and the parents because of the needs for gadgets.

Instructional Materials and Online Learning

With the current F2F, the teachers are getting ready for the instructional materials which may include both the online learning as well as the instructional materials which may be used both on the part of the teachers and the students with the current training development on that part.

These may increase the positive emotions among the persons involved in the process. May this be a lesson to everyone that in every changes which we may experience, there will always be a positive resiliency which we may experience.

References:

Quipper. (2022). Why Filipino Teachers are Modern Day Heroes.

https://philippines.quipperschool.com/post/188142463772/why-filipino-teachers-are-modern-day-heroes.