The parents are considered as one of the main legs of the tripod in the society. There may be some difficult parents and some easy to talk with parents. This might be one of the best and worst scenario, if the education cannot get the parents as their partners.

Who are these parents and why are they important?

No one can deny the idea that the parents are important in the educational set up since they are the ones who support the schooling system with their current genuine appreciation of the school set up and how they give comfort to their children as learners of the generation and the new hope for the next generation.

Parents are immensely essential as part of the educational set up since they are the ones that:

Highlight the needs of the children and attend to it

Give physical comfort and convenience to their children at home making education easy and less hassle

Developing the parental bond between teachers and the students as well as the administrators

Making the parents as the catalyst of change and immersing them with the brigade eskwela.

Highlighting the parental power and authorities in different organization which may cater more educational positive trip and encouragements.

How important are parents, again in the community of the education? The academic community must see the interactions actively among the efforts of the parents. The fuel of energy among these pillars of the educational set up has come to a wonderful ending amidst pandemic and now that the F2F is on its start. The F2F among the parents experience more than just stress but there are more than the stress that parents are experiencing, it is the notion that parents are quite simply loving that learning over stress is what they can accomplish. They love to interact with the school and love to be of assistance and help among the partners which they have-the school.
