Teachers amidst pandemic are one of the best representations of love, passion and firm decision making. They also manifest good behaviors even though most of them are stressed and most of them has their own family to attend to. They manifest good representation of the positive things in life.

Most teachers featured in the news are those with outstanding deeds and most of these are so inspiring and they are actually from zero to hero teachers. They manifest love and passion towards quality service, quality education and quality deeds. They are the most loved among all other professions in the perspectives of the students especially those students with special needs and those pupils who are given the chance to become the great people in their own world.

Teacher elicit positive energy and love in the classroom. Guides the students with all their hearts and given these students ignition and spark to become what they are and to find their true selves. They are the ones whom are considered to be the best people in the world since almost everyone if these teachers are heroic are like the super heroes everyone is waiting for.

Of course, there are other more than the best in this world, but for the eyes of the little one, they are the best since they are the ones visible and stayed with them amidst all the things that is happening. They are the ones which wants the best for their students, even had given their whole lives to their children and up to their last dying breaths they want their students to become happy and educationally satisfied.

All the love in the world, the say.

However all these love may be erased, if the numerous deeds that a teacher does everyday is changed into something that might tarnished his/her career. With the single touch of mistakes mostly one teacher may lose her/ his career and may lead to a more devastating effect. With this, what might be done to minimize this and remain the perspectives among other people the saying: all the love in the world, for these teachers.

Be cautious, active and proactive. In everything one might does, try to follow standards and be the best in everything.

Be friendly and selfless. Becoming the friend of everyone and having selfless acts may shield us from committing mistakes.
