One of the most terrifying diseases to emerge in the past two years is COVID 19. Then, unexpectedly, all activities stopped worldwide. Everything, including the schools were closed along. Parents' fear resulted to children stay at home. The government then continued to hunt for a potential cure for this epidemic. Vaccines from tested pharmaceuticals were given for free. To attain the immunity, vaccinations are indeed necessary for us especially the kids who go to school.

In the recent report of LGU-Dinalupihan COVID 19 Help Desk, only 7,122 children aged 5 to 11 were vaccinated. Some parents are hesitant to have their children vaccinated even if the vaccine is free.

According to the Editorial Staff of the American Lung Association, there are five reasons why your child should get the COVID-19 vaccination. Foremost, it can help prevent your children from getting COVID-19. It can also help your family get back to a more normal life. It also protects your family, friends, and teachers. Within the community, it sets an example for others. Lastly, vaccines are safe. With these reasons, parents should have a positive mindset on what the COVID-19 vaccine has to offer.

Likewise, children must receive the vaccine since it will act as their defense. Acquiring virus may be prevented by getting vaccinated. As a result, this will provide an opportunity for the schoolchildren to participate in extracurricular activities such as peer games, scouting, and cooperative learning while in class. A chance to travel and spend more time outside is also at hand.

Open-mindedness is a virtue for parents. Give your kids a shot without thinking twice. Since you are probably already immunized, why not offer your kids the opportunity to receive immunizations for free? Your kids will be safeguarded because of this.
