A teacher's role is to teach. But only a few knew that her role is countless. In a classroom with different characteristics, sometimes a teacher's role is a counselor. She gives advises, she guides, she opens a heart of a timid child. A teacher can inspire you to be a better version of yourself. Her patience is immeasurable while she is trying to help you read and write at your very tender age.

She is a nurse, too. She can take care her wounded learner. A second mother in the classroom. She can almost fix everything and maintain peace and unity in class. She is a good captain who can command her pupils to be respectful and be good followers.

Only a teacher can handle more than thirty learners with different attitude inside the classroom. She is a good manager of a class. Teacher does not have a magic wand, but she can supervise and guide these huge number of learners with much patience assuring their safety and learning each day.

No one can ever replace the role of a teacher. This pandemic showed the world that the teacher's role is irreplaceable. Many parents and guardians experienced that being the facilitator of learning to their children is a struggle. They serve as a teacher of their children at home. Parents' patience is tested. They value even more the teachers. Only a teacher can be able to work in a constantly evolving environment and adjust their teaching method based on the age of their pupils, the resources available and the changing curriculum

Without teachers, we are incomplete. They are the ones who will help you and guide you to become what you want to become. Without teachers there will be no teachers. Without teachers there will be no engineers and all other professions. The world cannot survive without caring and hardworking teachers. They mold an individual from a very tender age to become so powerful in society.

Teachers are selfless. They give more than what they can give. Time, energy, and sometimes finances, too especially when her pupils have no food to eat and even a uniform to wear. That's how big the heart of a teacher is!
