The Covid-19 pandemic is one of the riskiest challenges we have faced. We all have been affected by the COVID-19 pandemic in many aspects. However, the impact of the pandemic and its consequences are felt differently on our status as individuals like economic and social disruption. While some try to adapt to working online and work from home, the learners cope in blended learning to pursue their education but it still struggle for them this kind of situation and keeping ourselves and their family healthy by staying at home, others have no choice but to be exposed to the virus while keeping society functioning like the heroes at are present time – the front liners. Because of this pandemic, everything has changed and nothing that we can do at that time is to embrace the changes that happen in our lives. And now, we are going back to our normal lives even though it is a long and slow-moving process, the most important we change for the better tomorrow.

Now, we are in stage of returning our normal lives, as other people say “business as usual”- work life (returning employees to the workplace), social interactions and communications are also back in normal situation and the most important after a long break the children experience to back in school but pandemic restrictions is present for the safety of learners. Pandemic experience was a lifetime circumstance that you couldn't forget but the most important thing we learned from this experience.

COVID 19 is life-changing for all of us, but let us all take a wide realization that learning from this and change is one of the reasons we are more courageous and bolder than our fears. Change is the only constant in life. The ability to adapt to those changes will determine success in life.
