Teachers serve as role models not only in school but also in the entire community as well. They have outstanding attributes that lead young people to admire and imitate them for they are pleasing and righteous. Highlighting these characteristics reminds us that teachers bring inspiration and hope to their educational clientele...the learners of the new generation.

Teachers are always ready to serve. Whether in school or in the community, the teacher is much willing to render utmost and heartfelt services that create a big impact among the stakeholders in the entire community. It is best to think that every teacher reflects greatness.

Another distinctive quality that is adorable among teachers is that they are passionate on the things that they do. They see to it that they provide the learners with quality and excellence in learning. They utilize the curriculum in order to provide the learners with the competencies that they need in order to develop and to become productive. Indeed, they seek for the great things and instill them within the learners.

Teachers are known for having a kind heart. This is true because the teachers pour their greatest understanding, compassion and open-mindedness during the stay of the learners in the school. There are times that the teachers are being challenged by the misbehaviors of some students and by the untoward incidents that happen in the classroom but still the teacher applies maximum tolerance. The kindness that the teachers show indicates their greatness.

It is awesome to think that teachers are sources of creativity and innovation. The teachers are not complacent on mediocrity instead they transform the class into a creative and innovative setting for learning. They devise their creative strategies and materials in order to win the attention of every child in the class and lead him or her to learning. Certainly, their creativity and innovation are on the highest level.

Teachers most especially nowadays are being bombarded with heavy loads not only in teaching but due to other related tasks. With the given challenges, the teachers employ their extreme flexibility in order to adapt to needs and to the demands of work. They believe that they should excel and surmount the greatest work battles.

The teachers particularly of the present generation embrace the changes that the education sector implements. This necessitates teachers to be more compliant to the orders and directives bestowed on them. Auspiciously, the teachers have the extreme eagerness to follow and conform to the mandated advice provided by the department.

Indeed, every attribute that a modern teacher possesses at present is a reflection or mirror of greatness. We can proudly say that a teacher is still one of the well-revered and well-admired personalities in the society for his or her distinguishing characteristics are truly outstanding and great!
