Good school leadership creates opportunities to every human force in the school. It is a way of inspiring people to be motivated in achieving their tasks towards the achievement of vision and mission. One good leader leaves an impact to the school and community where he serves. But how can we say that a leader is leaving a legacy?

Empowering teachers in your school is one of the best ways of showing good leadership. Teachers are the future school administrators thus developing in them the leadership skills needed to be as effective leaders like you is a must. A true school leader knows how to tap the potentials of his/her teachers. Giving them opportunities to serve and take the wheel is a manifestation of good leadership which could be felt and marked as your legacy.

Creating an inclusive and collaborative learning environment is one of a legacy that can be built by a good school leader. Challenges continue to pour as changes happen in the landscape of education. A school with learning environment that is open to all and embrace every child's unique individuality is a definition of a successful school. A leader who knows how to step up and address the needs of every child in the school is a legacy that cannot be easily forgotten.

Another quality of a good leadership that can be his legacy is his way of utilizing data and resources effectively and efficiently. Data were used as basis of school leader's actions to make plans and improvement. With the proper use of data, school resources were allocated properly and be used effectively which sure lessens the learning gaps.

Most of all, a good school leader foresees the future of the school and its learners. His vision which is accorded to the DepEd vision and mission, creates better learning opportunities to all learners. The mission of the school is carefully identified which has long-lasting impact to the community it serves. The school which is felt by the community is a school with great school leaders who will leave a legacy that is marked to each member of the community.
