The school is a learning institution where children can develop their talents, skills, behavior, and capabilities. This is a place where they can learn more knowledge and facts that will boost their personality and well-being. Parents send their children in the school to educate them, to learn and to experience social activities. School is also a place that provides learning activities and a lot of brain skills.

We all know that children at a very young age are taught how to read and write. They start learning the alphabet, numbers, and even solve some simple mathematical word problems. The school is also a foundation of knowledge, facts, values, and even historical and political awareness. It gives every child to acquire learning and development of oneself.

The social life of a child is also being nurtured in school. It prepares the child to face all the challenges in life. Children enjoy having friends. They love going every day to meet new friends and learn new things. Schools have different programs that will enhance the knowledge and abilities of each learner. They encourage every child to study hard, gain more knowledge and skills so that they can be proud of their school. Every learning facility of each school tends to enhance and develop their capabilities. Better ways of learning are also provided.

Therefore, we can say that school provides everything that the children need in order for them to develop and improve themselves, their personality, behavior and attitude, skills and talents, ability and capabilities, values and the like. Apart from educators, parents should give importance to the school. Let us support and help our children in the achievement of their goals and objectives. In the long run, helping the school is like helping our children.
