

A NEED FOR PERSONAL INTEGRITY

by:
ORLANDO ILAYA SANTIAGO

To maintain the sustenance of life, majority of us, any walks of life, want to have employment and that's a common knowledge. Of course, it is a common sense that we always wanted to have source of income for our basic necessity to support our personal and family needs. Today millions of graduates now a days still unemployed for many reasons, we don't need to elaborate further because of the present situations. But how should an employee be? What characters or traits should we possess to become a fitting one.

For my point of view, its is just a simple and basic trait we should have. Let us start with the trait "SIMPLE AND CLEAN". Basically, we should be always clean to our own personal. Always observe a proper hygiene and taking a bath before going to office, wearing appropriate clothing for the working environment, etc. Not only on our tangible body but also clean on the words we utter. We need to observe and respect the people we meet regardless of their status in society.

Part of being simple and clean is our workplace itself. As we embark in our day to day performance of our duty, it is important that the workplace is clean, presentable and work-worthy. We should ascent the work place with clear selfless service to others. Moreover, we should to make our workplace unified with our officemates as well as to our clients.

Next would be "PERSONAL DISCIPLINE". It is very important to follow the do's and don't set by the organization what we are employed to. The moment you enter and step your feet inside the office the time is no longer yours but the time belongs to the company or one organization. We must use every minute or every hour entrusted to us with full skills and meaning. There should be a high level of efficiency for a maximum yield of targets and minimum wasted works. Time is also of the essence. It should always be viewed as an opportunity and should be utilized for its optimum benefits. Remember today's time can't be turned back when tomorrow comes, today and tomorrow is different.

Lastly, RESPONSIBILITY". As we work, we should practice the liabilities held responsible to us. It is designed to make or break an employee when such responsibility is being handled. In the broader concept of responsibility, sharing what is the fundamental needs of others is a must. Putting personal interest aside for the benefit of many because for others is what we are here for. Most importantly and always bear in our mind 'SERVING OTHERS IS ALSO SERVING TO CHRIST OUR LORD".

References:

(2018) SELLING – Principles and Practices that work and make Sense

EDUARDO P. GAROVILLAS

2005 President – Philippine Marketing Association

CEO – YEHEY! Corporation

Certified Professional Marketer