

COMMITMENT AT WORK

by:
MARC KENNETH S. TOLENTINO

People are normally hired for jobs due to their certain qualifications and characteristics. The employers or leaders of the organizations look for the personal traits and professional attainments of applicants. Skills and talents are also the bases for hiring. Although you have those qualities, one of the exceptional qualities that an employee must bear with himself or herself is commitment.

Commitment connotes a manifestation of dedication and engagement in one's job. It is one of the attributes that every individual must carry in the workplace. This may reflect how an employee projects himself or herself in the performance of the given job.

There are several ways on how to show commitment in the workplace and the following are the possible indications:

Punctuality is one of the proofs that an employee is committed. It is recommended to be on time when going to work. If somebody comes on time it means that he or she has the great willingness to serve and that is commitment.

Volunteerism in the place where you work is also an indication of commitment. It is the initiative to do a certain task not being asked. It is a very good thing if someone is always willing to support and help fellow workers as an expression of one's commitment.

Doing your best in the working place is also one of the signs of commitment. Several employees are excelling and putting the best efforts in the performance of their duties and responsibilities not for the sake of promotion or remuneration but instead they perform with their utmost capabilities for the sake of the organization.

The sharing of your innovative ideas, skills and talents would be great. This shows how you are committed to your organization and to your job as well. Giving what you have for the benefit of others is admirable. Contributing a lot to the organization is an expression of commitment.

Demonstrating quality in your work is also a showcase of commitment. The type of performance that you show in the workplace determines how committed you are in a job. When someone adheres to the work standards then commitment is mirrored.

Sticking with the vision, mission, goals, objectives and core values in the workplace reflects commitment. The employee who follows the path of the organization may be considered dedicated to the job and to the workplace.

Professionalism is also a signal of commitment. Being professional in terms of ways or actions in work may yield commitment. If someone is professional in dealing with work and fellow workers then commitment becomes evident.

Having the burning passion in yourself gleans your commitment in your work. This is a very good manifestation of dedication in every employee. It is an indication of hard work and diligence in work and it is how you put yourself in everything you do.

In this present generation, we have to look for the most committed people because they are the ones who may possibly perform superbly in the workplace and who will sincerely offer the best things that they have.

References:

Tips and Steps to Show Commitment at Work.

<https://www.glassdoor.com/blog/guide/commitment-at-work/>.

Retrieved: January 18, 2023.

Indeed Editorial Team. How To Improve Your Commitment To Work.

<https://www.indeed.com/career-advice/career-development/commitment-for-work>