The school is an institution that caters educational services to learners. It also establishes relationships and connections with stakeholders in order to realize all its programs and projects for worthy causes. With a better vision and mission for the school surely the educational institution would become greater. Envisioning the future and setting the actions to be accomplished would elevate the school for it aims for excellence and progress.

Another thing that makes a school stand out and greater is its advanced school facilities. Through the proper utilization of the school budget and with ardent cooperation with the Local Government Units (LGUs), public and private institutions and corporations, greater facilities may be realized. Having highly qualified personnel and staff would certainly lead the school to greater heights. The quality of human resources in the school is vital to the growth and progress of the school because they serve as the brains and bodies of the school.

Having more competent, more innovative, and more talented teachers in the school is advantageous. Similar to the other personnel and staff, the teachers who are highly fitted to the job due to educational attainments and trainings achieved would precisely lead the school to a greater level. The more dynamic and inquisitive students are indeed assets of the school. The students who are trained very well and conditioned to do better may achieve greater things in school. They may be able to compete with other schools in terms of academic and non-academic contests and pursuits.

The school may have national and international linkages and partnerships would further lead the school to more advancements and accomplishments. With the assistance of varied institutions and with the exposure of the people of the school in different events and undertakings being brought by partners and linkages, achieving greater statures would be possible.

It is good to dream big for the school and its people. When the school is in something bigger the people aim higher and do greater actions.
