

OVERCOMING CHALLENGES

by:

Emilie S. Reyes

Master Teacher II San Ramon Elementary School

Teachers face several challenges at the end of every school year. These include preparing school forms, assessment results, reports regarding graduation and recognition, including accomplishing the Individual Performance Commitment and Review Form. As generated from Exceptional Teachers Website, there is no tired like teacher tired. Like students, teachers get stressed out from those long testing days too. With the demands of time, teachers must consider certain actions to overcome these duties.

Foremost, teachers must keep their students' pertinent documents secured. Copies of birth certificate, report card, and the like must be kept properly. School forms must also be updated regularly so that tasks will be reduced when the year end is approaching.

Second, pupils' responses or outputs must be recorded. Once the pupils are done with their activity, the result must be recorded right away. Teachers should bear in mind that they should maintain learners' academic performance diligently. Transparency and fairness must also be put into consideration. Parents must be given the assurance that their children get what they deserve.

Moreover, to make their jobs easier, teachers must learn how to maximize the gadgets found in school. The use of computers, laptops, and even mobile phones can really help. Considering that there are available useful things found in school, why not make the most out of those?

For real, it all depends upon the teachers' attitude towards work. In any situation, teachers are expected to be adaptable, optimistic, competent, knowledgeable, and committed. It makes absolutely no difference if you have every minute under control but lack the drive to start your day off with excitement and enthusiasm.

References:

<https://teachingexceptionalthinkers.com/2019/04/09/survival-tips-for-tired-teachers/>