

BEING AN EFFECTIVE TEACHER

by:

Rowena A. Dela Rosa

Teacher I, Samal North Elementary School

So many research and studies reveal that teachers must be effective in and outside the classroom. A teacher is said to be effective when he is not only knowledgeable in areas he is handling but he knows the teaching processes involves in all he does. He is also expected to have good relationships with his superiors, co- teachers, parents, community and learners. Having enough knowledge and being competent academically is not a basis to be called an effective mentor.

An effective teacher will help improve school and pupil outcomes and performance in the classroom that's why he need to master the teaching techniques and strategies that can be acquired from research and continuous studies (professional growth).It can be proven thru the observation of his teaching performance to be done by his superiors like the school principal. The use of modern technology will help a lot to improve his teaching skills and will inspire his learners. The know-how in managing his classroom and in solving conflicts in the classroom will also help to become an effective teacher.

Today as we explore the modern world operated by computers and different gadgets, teachers need to upgrade their skills and adopt themselves to the new environment and to the new method of delivery of instructions. Since our learners today are exposed to these modern equipment, the challenge on our part is to improve our digital skills and be open to learn. Since there are videos that can be seen using the internets, effective teachers must expose themselves to this new strategy in teaching if our deepest goal is to continually inspire our learners.

References:

The Educators Magazine, March 2019

depedbataan.com
The Official Website of DepED Division of Bataan