Every learner is expected to interact actively during class hour for the benefit of one's development and growth. The teacher encourages dynamic participation among the children as well as a proactive engagement.

Learner engagement is a manifestation of the quantity and quality of time and effort that every individual spends in active participation in school whether during class session or any available time for further learning. It is indeed a measure on how persevering, dedicated, committed, willing, motivated, inspired, and active in the learning environment and in school activities.

In the demonstration of a learner's perseverance, a teacher must instill this attribute by implanting in one's character the persistence and assurance to study religiously and to have the ardent inclination to learn and interrelate in class discussion and to learn more by reading and searching for more knowledge and information even at a young age.

The child must acquire the value of dedication as a display of one's engagement. The teacher should keep on developing within the learner to wholehearted devote time on studying, in reciting, in doing school outputs and in participating in varied school activities.

The willingness to learn and to participate must be embedded in one's character. As a teacher you can make a big difference in a learner by training mind and boosting confidence within each learner as to mold true engagement. This would certainly yield a child who has the passion to soar high in school.

The teacher may invigorate the spirit of each learner to further develop engagement. Augment the energy of each individual to grow and to attain progress by mounting a good mindset within the child. This means that the teacher should lead the child in developing the willingness to aim for more skills, competencies, and knowledge in school.

One of the greatest things to acquire is the motivation in achieving greater things in the learning environment. Teachers are responsible to stimulate the emotion and drive the student to do better as part of the learner engagement.

The learners need inspiration to perform and enjoy different tasks from varied learning areas. If they are being encouraged and uplifted by teachers, then they will be more interested to show the best they can in any undertakings.

Active engagement is vital and that is why the teachers must increase the learning activities that are more inviting to the students. Keep in mind that the learners crave for more innovative actions wherein they would pour their whole and undivided attention whenever they are in the class.

For a teacher to develop a learner engagement, the above-mentioned strategies are highly commendable and useful. Increasing learner engagement would become more feasible when the essential means are employed.
