Amid the social media prevalence, the school, parents, and community are working together for the education and character of the learners. This is to instill within them the benefits of education and the values that they need to imbibe as they grow.

There are certain advantages that convergence may yield for the sake of the pupil or learner.

The child is well-guided in education. With the convergence among school, parents, and community, the child will be led to a better direction in education. This may be realized if the three groups ensure that the child receives quality education and that the educational needs are being addressed and provided.

The learner may feel the presence of the support system. It is very grateful on the part of the child if the convergence of the school, parents, and community support him in various undertakings in school. There are certain ways that convergence may manifest the care and love for every learner and if they are realized, the support system is manifested.

The child will be able to acquire the right values in life. The merging of school, parents, and community may create certain activities, programs and projects which will feature and uphold good Filipino values that will be contributory to one's good character. The right values are necessary among children for them to become better as human beings.

The learner will be able to excel academically. The convergence among school, parents, and community will promote better academic performances among learners. When these children are being well-monitored and well-guided by the school, parents, and community, it is very possible that they will be inspired and motivated in their academic pursuits.

The child will be more aware of the people in the community. the partnership among school, parents, and community. There are various activities that the three groups will hold together, and this may develop the societal awareness of every child.

The child will achieve his greatest potentials. The cooperation among school, parents, and community. There are distinct programs and project wherein the three groups are related. These undertakings not only nurture the academic capacity of a child but also helps him discover and show his talents.

Through the so-called shared responsibility, convergence or partnership among the school, parents and community, the child or learner becomes well-guided, secured, righteous, academically incline, aware and talented member of the society.
