

EXTRA

by:

Elvira B. Sawi

Master Teacher I, San Ramon Elementary School

Reading is regarded as the center of learning. When children read with comprehension, they are more likely to foster possibilities of true and effective learning. Most of our learning areas make extensive use of literary or informational text; therefore, learners must be able to comprehend the topic information, instructional concepts, and specific texts provided for them.

The school can do the extra to facilitate an effective and meaningful reading process by providing creative, exciting, and engaging activities that aim to promote love for reading. In order to create appropriate conditions and encourage to read, it must establish a reading and learning areas that will serve as safe and quiet haven for readers that will help them enhance their comprehension and reading abilities.

A variety of reading materials must be made available to cater different reading levels and interests. This must be accessible for all learners to increase reading comprehension skills because they have many resources that they can choose from. Learning areas must be constructed in a welcoming and conducive atmosphere for reading. They must be made in a reader-friendly environments that are well-designed to cater a variety of reading activities. These spaces must be provided and built in an appealing design and well-organized manner, that would contribute in cultivating reading attractiveness thus improving the level of reading among our learners.

According to worksheetcloud.com, reading is fundamental in helping us find and convey information. Reading is a habit that needs to be developed; it is not something that comes naturally. It serves as the cornerstone of all knowledge and learning. It's an essential skill that is developed at a very young age. It is also the gift we can offer to our learners for it opens doors to knowledge, reflection, and empathy.

The extra of creating reading spaces and providing different materials support our goal in achieving quality learning and drive results towards providing remedy to illiteracy.

References:

<https://www.worksheetcloud.com/blog/why-is-reading-important/>.