

TEACHER'S REFLECTION

by:

Mr. Crisanto M. Baluyot

Master Teacher II, Bonifacio Camacho National High School | Abucay, Bataan

There is no doubt that teaching is a satisfying profession. Nothing can compare with the joy of being able to shape young minds and help young people discover the wonder and beauty around them. Engaging myself in teaching is an honor and prestige for me. Therefore, I have to show my love for my fellowmen and that I deserve the position where I am now. Teaching is a serious vocation for me. Perhaps it is too serious that sometimes I forget there is a "fun" side to teaching. Secondary school teaching brings joy. There's something like knowing that one is helping shape the minds of the country's future leaders. I am giving my talent to the less fortunate and deserving students. Joining the teaching profession is an indicator that I have encouraged learners to sustain their interest in the subject matter I taught. Currently, I am teaching at Bonifacio Camacho National High School, located at Calaylayan, Abucay Bataan. Its strong, capable, competent mentors, students of varied personalities and traits, more than enough rooms, and adequate teaching facilities offer quality education for all. I enjoyed the Department of Education's philosophy that we are a people organization committed to a culture of excellence in public service. Believing that the most important resource in our country is its people, we make educating Filipino children our singular mission. We empower Filipino children to discover their full potential in a child-friendly, value-based education and learning environment, so they can shape their own destiny in the global community. We prepare you to be a responsible citizen and an inspired leader who loves his country and is proud to be a Filipino. That's why, in my capacity as a science teacher for three decades, I believe my love for my countrymen and my love for my profession manifest nationalism in my own little way. With all of these, I'm very thankful to Almighty God for giving me patience and the Grace to pursue the course I've come to love, which has led me to a simple yet meaningful and enjoyable life.
