Technical writing is a type of writing skill that professionals and also students use to convey and discuss a specific or specialized topic. It requires guidance, instruction, or explanation to create this type of writing that focuses on a specific topic. The main goal of this writing skills is to make all complex information in a simple manner and be accessible to general audience. This kind of writing is beneficial in following the guidelines for adopting technical writing skill that helps you write more clearly.

As preparation for their upcoming Senior High School, students are practiced especially in their 9th Grade on how to acquire good technical writing skills. These skills are developed during their 9th grade where most of the lessons they will tackle especially in English and Filipino subjects are in the form of writing. Essay writing, short story, and poem composition are the common activities that are given to students to practice their writing skills. Due to the technical innovation of the 21st century, students often read user guides, online newsletters, website contents, and even simulation that can help students maximize the use of technology in their technical writing skills.

Further, teachers should aid their students in drafting their compositions. It should be noted that the following tips for technical writing that they should keep in mind if they are aspiring writers.

Here are some tips for the writing skill:

Understand the audience

Keep language simple

Clarify the purpose of the content

Maintain a professional tone

With this practical style of writing, it will help writers accomplish their task, become familiar to terminologies and complete the procedure. Writing an effective composition may lead to deeper connections for both parties, as an author or writer you have to persuade the audience in believing in your statements. Research of reliable and timely information may persuade and even entertain the reader to read your article. Lastly, in making an effective article is to give information to the reader about a specialized topic. By focusing on the 3 main purpose for writing, effectivity of the article you are about to write and the readers to be read will make an impact to the both parties as they are sharing with the same ideas, especially students today are very curious about new and reliable information that can help them in their Senior High School
