A teacher helps learners learn, become competent, and moral. Primary school instructors employ pleasant techniques to teach young children. Therefore, primary and pre-primary classes are informal. Teachers impart information, but their significance varies by pupil. They provide skills and education. Teacher meaning is wonderful for learners who have learned from instructors, but not for those who have had unpleasant experiences (Teachmint@wp, 2024).

Teachers mold learners therefore they need both qualifications and commitment. Most nations use professional instructors to teach their learners. There are many motives to teach. Teachers are crucial to learners' lives. As a teacher, you must motivate kids to be great. A teacher is trusted to advise learners, who are the future of the nation and humanity. Teachers help kids with academics and extracurriculars, but they also shape their futures and make them better people. Learners learn information, ethical values, tradition, new issues, and solutions from teachers. Learners benefit from competent teachers (Sen, 2024). A teacher, or schoolteacher, imparts information, skills, and morality to learners. Teaching involves more than just giving lectures and visiting classes. Historically, teachers have symbolized truth, beauty, and purity. Ancient India admired teachers for their morals, erudition, and selflessness. Teachers help kids perceive reality. Modern instructors assist learners make academic choices that will help them succeed in their jobs (Brainwonders, 2024). Teachers assess learners' strengths and shortcomings and advise them on effective practices. They inspire learners and teach them life skills like communication, compassion, organization, and presentation. Teachers inspire learners to succeed in all areas and attain life objectives. Their instruction helps learners distinguish right from wrong (Bhattacharjee, 2021).

It is essential to have teachers because they have the power to transform lives, to motivate aspirations, and to push the boundaries of human potential. A teacher's role is to care for, instruct, and bring up learners so that they can become contributing members of society. In addition to this, they have an unwavering faith in the capabilities of their learners and are enthusiastic about doing everything it takes to assist them in flourishing and accomplishing their objectives. Teachers are the greatest sources of motivation for their learners because they direct them through their educational journey and instill in them the self-assurance and knowledge that are necessary for success.
