

INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS OF ELEMENTARY TEACHERS

by:
Angeli M. De Guzman
Teacher III, San Benito Elementary School

Instructional materials are essential tools that help elementary teachers deliver lessons effectively. These materials support teaching by making lessons more engaging, interactive, and easier for young learners to understand. With the right instructional materials, teachers can explain concepts clearly and meet the different learning needs of students.

Instructional materials come in many forms. They can be visual aids like charts, posters, and flashcards. These help students understand lessons by providing images or keywords that support what the teacher is saying. Audio-visual materials like videos and presentations can also capture students' attention and make learning more interesting.

In addition, real objects or "manipulatives" such as blocks, models, and learning kits are useful, especially in subjects like Mathematics and Science. They allow students to have hands-on experiences, making lessons more practical and meaningful. For reading and language development, storybooks, worksheets, and picture cards are often used to improve comprehension and vocabulary.

The use of instructional materials is not only limited to enhancing understanding but also encourages active participation. When students interact with learning materials, they become more involved in the lesson, which can lead to better retention of knowledge.

It is important for elementary teachers to choose materials that are age-appropriate, relevant to the lesson, and suited to the learning levels of their students. In areas with limited resources, teachers often show creativity by making their own materials using simple, low-cost items.

In conclusion, instructional materials greatly contribute to make learning more enjoyable and successful for young minds. By using a variety of materials, teachers can cater to different learning styles, promote curiosity, and help students achieve academic success.

At the end of the day, the teacher is not only the guide but also the most valuable instructional material in the learning process. The teacher is the living example and guide for every learners.

References:

:<https://riveteducation.org/why-high-quality-instructional-materials-are-essential-for-teacher-and-student-success-how-standards-aligned-culturally-responsive-and-inclusive-materials-drive-learning-in-every-classroom/>