

WHY EDUCATION MATTERS: A MESSAGE TO MY SENIOR HIGH STUDENTS

by:

Al D. Pastelero, MBA

Teacher I, Morong National High School-SHS

As your teacher, I want to share with you why education is more than just attending classes and passing exams. Education is a powerful tool that shapes your future, opens doors to opportunities, and helps you grow into the person you want to become. It's not just about gaining knowledge, but also about building character, learning how to think critically, and preparing for the challenges of the real world.

Education gives you the foundation to make informed decisions. In today's fast-changing world, it's important to understand the issues around us, whether they're about society, health, money, or technology. The lessons you learn now, inside and outside the classroom, help you develop the skills to think clearly, ask the right questions, and make smart choices in life.

More importantly, education helps you discover your strengths and passions. It's through learning different subjects, joining school activities, and working with others that you begin to understand what you enjoy and where you excel. Whether you dream of becoming a doctor, a business owner, an artist, or a teacher, education is your starting point. It prepares you with the knowledge and confidence to chase your dreams.

Education also teaches life values such as discipline, patience, teamwork, and responsibility. These values are just as important as academic lessons. They shape your attitude, guide your actions, and prepare you to face difficulties with courage and resilience. The habits and mindset you develop in school will stay with you far beyond graduation.

Another reason why education matters is that it empowers you to be part of something bigger than yourself. An educated person is more likely to contribute positively to their family, community, and country. You gain not only personal success but also the ability to help others through leadership, service, and innovation. The more you learn, the more equipped you are to bring about change where it's needed.

Education also helps you become more adaptable in an uncertain world. Careers, technology, and even the way we live are constantly evolving. With a strong educational foundation, you'll have the flexibility to learn new things, shift paths when needed, and stay relevant no matter where life takes you. Lifelong learning begins with taking your studies seriously today.

Finally, education builds self-worth. When you understand how capable you are, when you achieve your goals, and when you overcome challenges through learning, you begin to believe in yourself. This confidence becomes your inner strength as you step into the next chapter of your life. And as your teacher, nothing makes me prouder than seeing you grow into capable, confident, and compassionate individuals ready to make a difference.

References:

University of the Potomac. (n.d.). Why Education Is Important in Our Life. Retrieved from <https://potomac.edu/importance-of-education/>

Pastelero, A. D. (2025). Why education matters: A message to my senior high students.